Centurion launches Defined Return Fund - Longevity Plus class

Centurion Fund Managers today announced that it will make available the Defined Return Fund Longevity Plus Class to High Net Worth investors. The fund has previously only been available to institutional investors. Professional investors will now have the opportunity to participate in a life settlement fund with 48 consecutive months of positive performance and an annualised return of 9.5% since inception.

David Rawson-Mackenzie, Director of Centurion Fund Managers explains, “We originally set up this class for a specific institutional client, but over the past few months we have seen an increasing demand from both professional advisors and institutional investors for a fund that combines a long track record with an annual return close to 10%, competitive fees and no redemption penalties. We believe that the Longevity Plus class meets these requirements perfectly.”

The Longevity Plus class, which is available in GBP, EUR and USD and provides investors with an annual distribution option of 6% per annum. There is a management fee of 1% and a performance fee of 20% on performances above the 9% return. The Defined Return Fund was launched in 2002 and is one of the longest running life settlement funds in the market.
